MEPS Reading List
This may seem like a long list, but it serves to demonstrate the great number and variety of interesting topics under the general heading of “microeconomic policy research.” Of course we will cover only a few of these (those papers you choose) in one semester! Some of the listings include links to working papers, but in most cases you can get published papers from the library’s ejournals.

Labor

  http://www.nber.org/papers/w16912

IO

Public

Development and History

Trade

Health Economics

Political economy

Urban

Spatial economics

Measuring interactions

  http://www.nber.org/papers/w18470